

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

ODD METRES. While we do not claim in this regard, that we have provided for every odd metre found in all Hymn Books in use, (an accomplishment which has never yet been effected,) we still believe that but few Hymns of this description can be found which the Chime will not afford appropriate tunes for. But, were we to adapt music for all the Hymns of the odd metres in the various Hymn Books, it would be necessary in many instances, even then, to write music for each separate verse; as the measure is so irregular in many peculiar metres, that no other course would obviate this difficulty. (As an example of this, note the discrepancy of measure between first and second verses of hymn, "Vital spark of heavenly flame.") When the use of such hymns cannot be avoided, it is better to sing them to Hymn Chants, than to attempt them to music that is not written out in full for each verse.

THE ORGAN SCORE. No labor or expense has been spared, to make the Chime, in every respect, a PRACTICAL BOOK: hence, we have arranged the harmony in full score (upon the two lower staves) throughout the entire work. With this arrangement, the music can be performed by persons who have but a slight acquaintance with a keyed instrument, without a knowledge of thorough bass.

THE ANTHEMS, are less in number, less difficult (generally), and better adapted to subserve purposes of utility, such as the opening and closing of Public Worship, occasional use, etc., than those of the author's preceding publications.

THE "CANTATA!" "Where is it? Could you not have given one for the Chime?" Yes! friends, if we had thought it advisable to make our work in a diminutive type, and condense one third of its tunes upon two staves, this could easily have been done. Yet, but few choirs out of the mass which use a collection of Psalmody, have the time to devote to practice such a species of composition; and again, the plot, being of a specific cast, detached portions are wholly unsuited for any occasion when the words are required to be of appropriate and particular applicability. We are warm friends of Oratorios, but think it better that they should be published in some other connection, than in a work designed for so staple use, as a collection of Psalmody.

(ADDRESS, FOUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.)

SIMPLIFICATION OF THE ELEMENTS OF VOCAL MUSIC.

NOTE.—The chief requisites in writing the elements of music are, not to explain too much nor too little. In the first error, the learner loses the main idea amid a cloud of bewildering technicalities; and in the second, he fails to apprehend the point premised, from the want of its being concisely and perspicuously rendered. Again, a book may contain the necessary details of the rudiments, but instead of their being arranged so as to render its classification strictly inductive, they may exhibit a promiscuousness and confusion comparable to that of articles of household furniture which have been suddenly removed in time of a fire. In the following presentation of the elements, they will be stated in such a manner as greatly to alleviate the task of the teacher in the time usually appropriated for their elucidation.

CHAPTER I.

1. Music is expressed to the eye by means of certain characters; which will severally be considered in their order, as follows:

Notes represent musical sounds; and their names and value are as follows:

A Whole Note  is equal to two  Halves;

to four  Quarters;

to eight  Eighths;

to sixteen  Sixteenths;

to thirty-two  Thirty-second

TO LENGTHEN NOTES.

2. A Dot placed after them adds one-half to their length. A dotted  equals ; a dotted  equals ; a dotted  equals .

3. Notes twice dotted are three quarters as long again. A  equals ; a  equals ; a  equals .

TO DECREASE THE VALUE OF NOTES.

4. Any three notes of the same denomination, having the figure 3 placed over or under them, are reduced in length to the time of two. Thus,

5. The figure 6 reduces six notes of the same kind to the time of four.

NOTE.—It often occurs in instrumental music, especially in accompaniments, that notes grouped as sixes are played as double triplets. It is then a source of much perplexity to determine the intent of such arrangements. If the accent is given with any degree of strength in such passages, they would be better expressed to be written in double the number of groups, or in triplets.

NOTE SECOND.—There is so much that is wholly arbitrary in the structural form of musical elements, that it is proper to anticipate all the queries, however unimportant in themselves, which may suggest themselves under this head to the mind of the learner. In pursuance to this remark, it may be said that,—

6. The manner of writing notes—whether with their stems up, thus,— or down, is immaterial, as their value is the same in either case. It is also unimportant whether their hooks are connected, thus, or are detached, .

7. When two or more notes are sung to one syllable, they are said to be slurred. Whole, Half, or Quarter Notes are slurred by this character,— , being placed either over or under them, thus,—

Eighth, Sixteenth, Thirty-second, and Sixty-fourth notes are slurred by uniting their hooks, thus,—

Examples of Whole, Half, and Quarters being slurred.

Eighths, Sixteenths, etc.

QUESTIONS.

1. By what means is music expressed to the eye? What characters represent musical sounds? What are the names and value of notes? 2. How can you make a note one-half longer? A whole note dotted receives the additional value of what note? A half, what? 3. How can you make notes three quarters as long again? A whole note dotted twice receives the additional value of what two notes? 4. By what means can you decrease the length of notes? Does it matter whether the figure 3 is placed over or under three notes, when their length is to be reduced to the time of two of the same kind? (No.) 5. How are six notes reduced to the time of four? 6. In writing notes, is it material whether their stems are carried up or down? Does it matter, either, whether their hooks are attached or detached? 7. By what means can two or more notes be sung to one syllable? When whole, half, and quarter notes are slurred, it is done by means of the character called a slur being placed over or under them; but how are eighths, sixteenths, &c. slurred together?

CHAPTER II.

RESTS.

1. The value of a silver dollar may be represented by a bank bill of a corresponding amount; so all notes in music have characters which exhibit their length and value, called RESTS.

3. Rests are denominated marks of silence, and are called by the name of the notes which they represent: as Whole note rest, Half, Quarter, etc.

- A Whole note rest hangs upon a line - -
 A Half note rest stands upon a line, - -
 A Quarter rest, the wing turns to the right,
 A Eighth, wing turns to the left, - - -
 A Sixteenth, two wings to the left, - - -
 A Thirty-second, three wings to the left, -
 A Sixty-fourth, four wings to the left, -

NOTE.—We find many singers of advanced age, who cannot, without referring to the elements of music, distinguish between the whole and half, and the quarter and eighth rests. To obviate this difficulty as far as possible, the half and quarter rests in this work have been slightly modified in form, so as to prevent their being confounded with the whole and eighth rests.

3. The forms of rests used in the body of this work, in the improved style, are as follows. Whole , half , quarter , eighth .

4. Rests may be once or twice dotted, the same as notes; thus:

QUESTIONS.

1. What characters in music represent the silent duration of notes? 2. What are rests denominated? By what other names are rests distinguished than as marks of silence? How do you distinguish a whole note rest? How a half? Quarter? Eighth? Sixteenth? Thirty-second? Sixty-fourth? 4. In what way can you lengthen the duration of rests? Can a rest be dotted more than once?

CHAPTER III.

EXPLANATION OF VARIOUS MUSICAL CHARACTERS.

1. A Staff in music consists of five lines and four spaces, and is used to write music upon, thus:—

2. The lines and spaces of the staff are named by the first seven letters of the alphabet.

3. On the Treble, Alto, and Tenor staves, the letters applying to the lines are ; to the spaces, (they spell) .

4. On the Base staff, the alphabet commences on the lower space:—

5. In counting the lines and spaces of the staff, always commence at the bottom, and count upwards.

6. When notes are written above or below the staff, added lines and spaces are used, thus:—

7. When notes are written above or below the staff, the first seven letters are repeated: none are used beyond G.

10. The letters apply to the base staff differently from what they do in the treble, alto, and tenor ; and the distinction thus existing is marked by the use of different Clefs.

11. The various clefs used in this work are as follows: for Base ; for Tenor ; for Treble and Alto . They are variously named, according to the parts to which they apply; as, Base Clef, Tenor Clef, and Treble.

EXAMPLE.

14. The learner will understand that the several parts in a piece of music (bass, treble, alto, and tenor) are designed to move along with a uniform velocity ; and it will be observed that the staves of the several parts are intersected at regular intervals with lines drawn across them, (the staves,) and these are called BARS, and are used for dividing the music into MEASURES.

15. In church music, a large bar, called the DOUBLE BAR, shows the end of a line of poetry, or strain.

[REDACTED]

is entirely groundless), in the present work, both the half and quarter will be used for the beat note, instead of the quarter alone. Quadruple time we have discarded, (with an occasional exception), because of the liability with the beginner of confounding the manner of beating it with triple time. During an incipient stage of practice, the singer is quite apt, after making the leftward beat in quadruple time, to bring the hand up instead of carrying it to the right. For this reason, nearly all pieces in common time in this work will be written in two-half, or two-quarter time.

MANNER OF BEATING TIME.

Two-half time, -	$\frac{2}{p}$, down and up,
Three-half time, -	$\frac{3}{p}$, down, left, up.
Two-half dotted, -	$\frac{2}{p.}$, down and up.
Three-quarter dotted, -	$\frac{3}{p.}$, down, left, up.

NOTE.—The former manner of writing compound time, by the figures 6-8, 6-4, &c., is erroneous, because it is sung with but two beats to the measure; whereas the numerator, in the fraction expressing the time, would require six beats instead of two. In this work, therefore, compound time is called "two-half time dotted," and "three-half time dotted," the figure indicating the number of beats to a measure, the same as the other forms of time.

QUESTIONS.

1. What department in music is founded on the length of sounds? 2. In this book, what is it that denotes the number of beats to a measure? What note is called the beat note? If the time changes in a piece of music in this work after its commencement, what alone is used to express it?

CHAPTER V.

MELODY.

1. The variation of musical sounds, as respects their pitch, (high or low), forms the department in music called Melody.

2. There are but seven primary sounds, and from these all music is derived. The eighth is but the repetition of the first, and forms, with the seven other sounds, an octave.

3. There are certain fixed arrangements of the seven primary sounds which form the musical Scales.

4. There are three scales used in music, called the Major, Minor, and Chromatic Scales.

NOTE.—The Editor, in a former book, the "GOLDEN LYRE," has fallen in with the attempt to substitute some term for designating the various distances in the scales, other than that of "tone" and "half-tone." But in spite of all our laudable (!) attempts at reformation on this point, custom—that tyrant which dominates all usages—persists in adhering to the old land-marks, and saying—in speaking of various musical intervals—"tone" and "half-tone." And we find all musicians of notoriety (in the instrumental department, especially,) retaining its use; and as the objection against it is only because it gives two significations to the word "tone," seeing we find the same criticism may be made upon a large portion of the English vocabulary, we shall return to its use again in this work.

5. Strictly speaking, an interval implies any distance in the pitch of sounds other than a tone or half-tone. We may then say—the interval of a half-tone, of a tone, a third, fifth, etc.

Form of the Major Scale.

From 7	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{G} \\ \text{G} \end{array} \right.$ to 8, a half-tone.
From 6	G to 7, a tone.
From 5	G to 6, a tone.
From 4	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{G} \\ \text{G} \end{array} \right.$ to 5, a tone.
From 3	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{G} \\ \text{G} \end{array} \right.$ to 4, a half-tone.
From 2	G to 3, a tone.
From 1	G to 2, a tone.

6. The major scale first applied to the staff, commences on C, thus :—

FOR TREBLE, ALTO, AND TENOR.

On the Use of the Syllables.

NOTE TO TEACHERS AND LEADERS.—Many of you, who have always been accustomed to the use of the syllables in your classes and choirs, will have about the same feeling upon being recommended to discontinue their use, that a cripple would have if advised to throw aside his crutches: but the alarm is a useless one. Our reasons for advising the disuse of the syllables are not without due weight. For some years past we have spent much time in visiting various sections of the country for the purpose of holding musical associations for the improvement of singers in style, expression, and vocal execution: and no one impediment against a proper and effective use of words in singing—exhibiting the sentiment they embody—has proved more formidable than the mechanical effect of note singing;—the words, by such singers, are used to sing the tune to, and not the tune to sing the words to. “But,” I am asked, “how are we to get the sounds, unless we sing the syllables?” Practice the scale in all the different keys, most thoroughly, to the syllable “La,” and it is important also to read tunes—with or without singing them—by the numerals. But, above all, classes and choirs should practice with the piano or melodeon. The latter instrument is now so common, there is no excuse for a choir being without one. And still more essential is the use of these instruments for classes, choirs, or individual practice, to correct the almost universal fault which exists among singers not accustomed to their use, of making the third in the Major Scale nearly as sharp as the fourth, and the seventh as high as the eighth.

QUESTIONS.

1. What department is formed in music by the variation of the pitch of sounds? 2. How many sounds are there? From what is all music derived? In singing the major scale, if we add the eighth, what does it form? 3. What is formed by a certain fixed relation of the seven sounds, together with the eighth? 4. What are the names of the three scales used in music? 5. Strictly speaking, what is an interval in music? 6. On what letter does the major scale commence, when first applied to the staff?

CHAPTER VI.

EXPLANATION OF FLATS, SHARPS, ETC.

1. A Sharp, #, placed before a note, #C, raises it half a tone.
2. A Flat, b, placed before a note, bC, lowers its pitch half a tone.
3. A Natural, n, placed before a note, nC, restores a note having been made flat or sharp to its original sound.
4. A Double Sharp, x, raises the pitch of a note a whole tone.
5. A Double Flat, bb, lowers the pitch of a sound a whole degree.
6. A Signature is the flats or sharps placed at the commencement of a tune. (See tunes in the body of the book.)
7. A Natural Signature is a tune having neither flats nor sharps at its commencement. (See tunes in the book.)
8. Accidentals are flats, sharps, or naturals, placed before notes in a piece of music; and they affect all notes on the same letters with themselves in the same measure, unless contradicted by another accidental unlike itself.

Natural Accidental.

Flat Accidental.

Sharp Accidental.

Accidental Contradicted.

9. Accidentals extend their influence into a succeeding measure when the first note in it is the same as the last in the preceding :

NOTE.—A performer upon the organ, piano, or melodeon, who plays from the score, (the four parts), sees things in a different light from what the singer does, who merely reads a single part : and hence, when an accidental occurs in any one of the four parts, and the same letter is used in another part before occurring again in the one where it (the accidental) was first introduced, it is customary—as a guide to the organist—to contradict such accidentals in the other parts, so that he may not be in doubt as to the extent of their influence.

EXAMPLE.

It will be observed that, in this example, B has not been flattened in the base ; still a natural is placed before it the first time it occurs after the B being made flat in the treble.

QUESTIONS.

1. What effect does a sharp have when placed before a note? 2. What is the effect of a flat? 3. Of a natural? 4. Of a double-sharp? 5. Of a double-flat? 6. What is a signature? 7. What is a natural signature? 8. What are accidentals? How far do accidentals extend their influence? 9. Under what circumstances do accidentals extend their influence into a succeeding measure?

CHAPTER VII.

THE SIGNATURES, SHOWING THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE SCALES.

1. The structure of the scale is always the same, let it commence on whatever letter it may. Do is always the first syllable of the Major scale, and La of the Minor.

2. The Key-note of a piece of music is always the last note of the base, from which the several parts derive their pitch. In the major scale it is always Do ; in the minor La.

3. To change the place of the scale, (or “transpose” it,) the signature must change also : as it takes a new signature every time it is moved from one letter to another.

QUESTIONS.

1. On what part of the major scale does the minor commence? Give the form of the minor scale ascending. In descending. 2. How is the chromatic scale formed?

EXPLANATIONS OF FORCE AND TIME.

1. Accent is a stress of voice given to the down beat.

Loud Soft Loud Soft Loud Soft < Loud Soft Soft Loud Soft Soft <

2. In the following forms of $\frac{3}{4}$ time, the accent gives place to the swell

NOTE.—Teacher, Leader, and Scholar,—Pay particular attention to the following observations upon beating time.

3. A beat consists of its motion and point of rest.

4. In singing two notes at a beat, the first is sung to the motion, (or first half,) and the second to the point of rest (or last half.)

5. A tune commencing in the following form of measure, would be said to commence at the left point of rest.

At the up point of rest.

At the down point of rest.

QUESTIONS.

1. What is accent? 2. Measure in three-quarter time, commencing with a half-note, what is the accent changed to? 3. Of what does a beat consist? 4. Which of two notes sung at a beat is sung to the motion? What is the second sung to?

CHAPTER XI. REMARKS TO TEACHERS.

Although you may have thoroughly instructed your class in all the foregoing principles, yet their knowledge at this stage of their advancement is only theoretical—not experimental or practical; and now it remains for you to adopt such a course as shall at once render the instruction you have imparted both tangible and useful. To give your class a practical idea of (a march is preferable to any other style of time thoroughly and carefully during its performance "Old Hundred" or "Dundee," or other melody they are familiar with to beat the time to it. This singing may be done from memory; as taxing of the attention to apply the time to it theoretically. Then practise singing for about a minute at a time, the whole, half, quarter, and other denominations notes, beating the time as they sing.

A Syncope is the transposition of the principles of accent, commencing a measure with a short note, which is succeeded by one or more of a lower denomination—and ending with a note of the same kind as the first. The accent is also given to the second note, if the measure has but two beats; if four beats, then the first half of each note after the first is accented throughout the measure, except the last, which, like the first, is made light.

THE MELODEON INSTRUCTOR.

THIS Instrument has of late come so universally into use, and its capacity being designed especially for church music ; a work for general use would be incomplete without it contained proper instruction for the learner of this instrument. But the first question to be settled is—What is the best mode of writing exercises for it—Shall it be by figures, or by condensing the four parts upon the treble and base staff,—or shall it be by the score ? As there is every objection to the first plan, and nothing in its favor, we must conclude that some other way is preferable. But, to explain. The chords indicated by figures do not tell you the denomination of the note ; they do not tell you whether a note is dotted, nor do they reveal anything to you, only the fact, that a note of some kind is a certain distance from the base ; but to tell what kind of a note it is, you must look at it ; and if this has to be done to determine the denomination of it, it is an easy matter also to see what letter it is on—or, in other words, what chord it is in. But the scholar may inquire, “How am I to learn harmony, or to become a scientific performer on an organ, piano, or melodeon, unless I play by the figures ?” Remember that the figures are simply a mode for expressing the harmonic combinations ; they are not the science itself, any more than words are ideas ; and as it is better to receive the musical idea directly than “through a glass darkly” by the figures, hence, we again repeat, that we dispense with them.

There are a few fundamental rules in harmony which, if music is properly arranged, the scholar will soon acquire, by “reading from the score.” And indeed, it may be said that all the rules of musical composition can be acquired by reading the productions of various authors, even without a musical grammar or text-book. The reason is obvious : all works on harmony and musical composition are simply the exponents of those principles which all correct compositions embody. And an analysis of those principles can be as easily effected by studying the compositions themselves as the works which treat of them.

Among the few rules which the scholar must commit to memory before attempting to practise the melodeon, are the following :

Avoid all consecutive fifths and octaves, in forming chords ; also avoid doubling the third, especially when the base note is on it, or, in what is termed the first inversion of the common chord.

REMARKS UPON STYLE IN PLAYING THE MELODEON.

In playing a wind instrument of the organ kind, care must be taken to play the notes as smoothly and connectedly as possible. In moving the fingers from one chord to another, let those which are to strike a succeeding chord be ready to fall on the keys the instant the preceding one is left, so that there shall be no break in the sound.

If the piece requires to be played staccato, (short and distinct,) only let the treble and alto be thus played ; while the base and tenor should be held down through a succession of notes on the same letter ; i. e., if four quarters should occur in the base and tenor, all on the same letter, play them as a whole note.

KEY-BOARD OF A MELODEON, SERAPHINE, OR ORGAN.

BLACK KEYS.

WHITE KEYS.

NOTE.—In order to learn the application of the letters to the keys, first ascertain the locality of any given letter; say, that of C. This, it will be observed, is found immediately at the left of each group of the two black keys. (The first group at the left of the key-board belongs to the group of three, it not being full, owing to its not embracing F#, below the first G.) From this reckoning point (C), it is easy to trace the letters—as they apply to the keys—up or down the key-board.

NOTE II.—All the elements preceding the Melodeon exercises in this work, must be thoroughly committed by the learner, before attempting this latter department of musical practice. No additional explanation of the rudiments will succeed the Melodeon study, as, once learned, they apply alike to both vocal and instrumental music. In fingering, the X denotes the thumb.

EXERCISES IN FINGERING.

The first system consists of two staves. The treble staff begins with a C-clef and a key signature of one flat (Bb). The bass staff begins with an F-clef and a key signature of one flat (Bb). The exercises are written in 2/4 time. The first staff has 16 measures, and the second staff has 16 measures. The exercises are designed to teach fingerings for various notes and chords.

The second system also consists of two staves. The treble staff begins with a C-clef and a key signature of one flat (Bb). The bass staff begins with an F-clef and a key signature of one flat (Bb). The exercises are written in 2/4 time. The first staff has 16 measures, and the second staff has 16 measures. The exercises are designed to teach fingerings for various notes and chords.

The third system consists of two staves. The treble staff begins with a C-clef and a key signature of one flat (Bb). The bass staff begins with an F-clef and a key signature of one flat (Bb). The exercises are written in 2/4 time. The first staff has 16 measures, and the second staff has 16 measures. The exercises are designed to teach fingerings for various notes and chords.

Scale of C Major.

Key of A Minor.

Two staves of music. The left staff is for the C Major scale, and the right staff is for the A Minor scale. Both are in 2/4 time. The notation includes treble and bass clefs, a key signature of one sharp (F#) for A Minor, and various musical symbols such as notes, rests, and fingerings (1, 2, 3, 4). The scales are written in a continuous, flowing manner, with the right hand playing the melody and the left hand providing harmonic support.

G Major.

E Minor.

Two staves of music. The left staff is for the G Major scale, and the right staff is for the E Minor scale. Both are in 2/4 time. The notation includes treble and bass clefs, a key signature of two sharps (F# and C#) for G Major, and various musical symbols such as notes, rests, and fingerings (1, 2, 3, 4). The scales are written in a continuous, flowing manner, with the right hand playing the melody and the left hand providing harmonic support.

D Major.

B Minor.

Two staves of music. The left staff is for the D Major scale, and the right staff is for the B Minor scale. Both are in 2/4 time. The notation includes treble and bass clefs, a key signature of two sharps (F# and C#) for D Major, and various musical symbols such as notes, rests, and fingerings (1, 2, 3, 4). The scales are written in a continuous, flowing manner, with the right hand playing the melody and the left hand providing harmonic support.

A Major. E Major.

F Major. D Minor.

B \flat Major. E \flat Major.

The musical score is organized into six systems, each consisting of a treble and bass staff. The systems are labeled as follows:

- A Major: Treble staff starts with a key signature of two sharps (F# and C#). The bass staff has a key signature of two sharps. Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-4. Breath marks (X) are placed above the right-hand notes.
- E Major: Treble staff starts with a key signature of three sharps (F#, C#, G#). The bass staff has a key signature of three sharps. Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-4. Breath marks (X) are placed above the right-hand notes.
- F Major: Treble staff starts with a key signature of one sharp (F#). The bass staff has a key signature of one sharp. Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-4. Breath marks (X) are placed above the right-hand notes.
- D Minor: Treble staff starts with a key signature of two sharps (F# and C#). The bass staff has a key signature of two sharps. Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-4. Breath marks (X) are placed above the right-hand notes.
- B \flat Major: Treble staff starts with a key signature of two flats (B \flat and E \flat). The bass staff has a key signature of two flats. Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-4. Breath marks (X) are placed above the right-hand notes.
- E \flat Major: Treble staff starts with a key signature of one flat (B \flat). The bass staff has a key signature of one flat. Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-4. Breath marks (X) are placed above the right-hand notes.

THE BLUE JUNIATA.

Words and Melody by Mrs. SULLIVAN.

1. Wild roved an In-dian girl, Bright Al-fa-ra-ta, Where swept the wa-ters of the blue Ju-ni-a-ta. Swift as an an-te-lope,

Thro' the for-ests go-ing; Loose were her jet-ty locks, In wa-vy tress-es flow-ing.

2.
 Gay was the mountain-song
 Of bright Alfarata,
 Where sweep the waters
 Of the blue Juniata.
 Strong and true my arrows are
 In my painted quiver;
 Swift goes my light canoe
 Adown the rapid river.

3.
 Bold is my warrior good,
 The love of Alfarata;
 Proud waves his snowy plume
 Along the Juniata.
 Soft and low he speaks to me,
 And then, his war-cry sounding,
 Rings his voice in thunder loud,
 From height to height resounding.

4.
 So sang the Indian girl,
 Bright Alfarata,
 Where sweep the waters
 Of the blue Juniata.
 Fleeting years have borne away
 The voice of Alfarata;
 Still sweeps the river on,
 Blue Juniata.

THE MELODEON INSTRUCTOR.

"ARE WE ALMOST THERE?"

FLORENCE VANE.

NOTE.—A young lady had visited the South for her health; but, finding that she hourly grew worse, her friends hurried her home. On the journey she was very much exhausted, and continually inquired, "Are we almost there?" She died just before reaching home. A friend, who accompanied her, wrote the following song.

Andante.

"Are we al - most there? Are we al - most there?" said a dy - ing girl, As she drew near home; "Are those our pop - lar trees that rear Their forms so high 'gainst the heaven's blue dome!

Then she talked of her flowers, and she thought of the well
Where the cool waters dashed o'er the large white stone;
And she thought it would soothe, like a fairy spell,
Could she drink of that fount when her fever was on.

3.

While yet so young, and her bloom grew less,
They had borne her away to a kindlier clime;
For she would not tell that 'twas only distress
That had gathered life's rose in its sweet spring time.

4.

And she had looked where they bade her look,
At many a ruin and many a shrine,
At the sculptured niche, and the shady nook,
And watched from high places the sun's decline.

5.

And in secret she sighed for a quiet spot,
Where she oft had played in childhood's hour;
Though shrub or floweret marked it not,
It was dearer to her than the gayest bower.

CHAPTER XII.

EXPRESSION AND STYLE OF PERFORMANCE.

1. Vocal music partakes of two general styles of performance; one is close and connected, called Legato; the other pointed and distinct, called Staccato.

2. In the first, the sound is sustained on one note until the following one is struck, thereby blending them together. In the second, the notes are cut short of their real time, and the beat is made up of a rest, sufficiently long to give it its full duration.

3. The staccato style of music is preferable in most instances for choir use, inasmuch as there is less liability to an inert and dragging style.

ORNAMENTAL NOTES.

4. Small notes immediately preceding larger ones are called Appoggiatures. They are not considered strictly as belonging to the harmony of a chord; but nevertheless they borrow their time, according to their value, from the note that succeeds them. They always occur in the accented part of the measure.

5. A small note immediately following a large one is called an After Note. This also takes as much time from the preceding or essential note as its denomination indicates; and always occurs on the unaccented part of the measure.

EXAMPLE.

6. A Trill (tr) is produced by the alternate repetition of two conjoint sounds—the principal note and the next above.

7. A trill should combine rapidity and brilliancy of execution. They are most commonly introduced on the note preceding the final one in a cadence.

8. A Turn (\sim) consists of a principal sound, with one a tone above, and another a half-tone below.

9. When the turn is introduced on a dotted note, the principal note is struck first.

10. The Portamento is a delicate manner of carrying or sliding the voice from one note to another so as to blend or connect the sounds. It is more prominent in a descending progression of melody than in an ascending. In psalmody, there are but few tunes which admit of its introduction. In secular music, its effect, when appropriate, is pleasing.

NOTE.—As the foregoing chapter pertains to an advanced part of the elements, questions are omitted.

EXPLANATION OF MUSICAL TERMS.

Accelerando, accelerating the time by degrees, faster and faster.

Adagio, as an adverb; meaning moderately slow. As a substantive, designating a piece of music of a particular character, in a slow movement; as, "An Adagio by Haydn," &c.

Ad libitum, at pleasure, without respect to time.

Affettuoso, denoting the character of a piece of music; meaning tenderly and affecting.

Allegretto, less quick than Allegro.

Allegro, quick and sprightly movement.

Alto, the second Treble.

Andante, in a distinct and exact manner, like the steps in walking; as a grade of time, it indicates a movement between quick and slow.

Anthem, a musical composition set to words of the Sacred Scriptures.

Arioso, in a light, airy manner.

Arpeggio, in the manner of the harp; chords struck in quick succession.

A tempo, in time.

Baritone, a voice whose register is between the Base and Tenor.

Base, the lowest part in harmony.

Cadence, or Cadenza, the closing of a strain; also, a fanciful extemporaneous strain introduced at the close of a song or melody.

Cantabile, in a graceful, flowing style of performance.

Cantata, a vocal composition of several movements.

Chantant, in the style of a chant.

Choir, a company of singers; also the part of the church which they occupy.

Choral, a slow style of music, written mostly in notes of equal length, but sometimes applied to all varieties of measure in slow movement.

Chromatic, ascending or descending by half-tones. (See Intervals, Chromatic Scale.)

Interval, the space or interval between a note and the next note, which forms

Da Capo, from the beginning, and ending at the word "Fine."

Declamando, in a speaking or declaiming style.

Devozione, devotional.

Dolce, sweet, soft, and delicate.

Duo, (Ital.) in English, Duett or Duetto, for two voices.

Espressivo, with expression.

Falset, or Falsetto, a term applied to that register of the male voice above its natural compass, which resembles a female voice; hence called false, or assumed.

Fine, or Finale, the end.

Forzando, forz. or ff. (See Sforzando.)

Fugata, in the style of a fugue.

Fugue, a musical composition in which the subject or theme is sustained by one or more of the parts alternately throughout the piece.

Grasioso, with grace and smoothness.

Imitation, music in which there is a repetition of the same melody in the various parts, without preserving that exactness in the intervals which is required in a fugue.

Interlude, an instrumental passage introduced between two vocal passages; or between the singing of two stanzas in church music.

Interval, the distance between any two sounds in music.

Lamentabile, Lamentevole, mournfully.

Larghetto, slow, but not so slow as Largo.

Largo, a very slow, and rather soft movement, in which the tones are sustained in their full length, and executed with the utmost taste and expression.

Legato, in a smooth, gliding manner.

Loco, as written.

Maestoso, majestic, with dignity and grandeur.

Melody, an agreeable succession of sounds; or, any succession of sounds.

Moderato, in moderate time.

Motet, Motetto, a piece of sacred music in several parts and movements.

Obligato, indispensable; applied to accompaniments which cannot be left out without destroying the intended effect of the piece.

Oratorio, a sacred musical drama.

Part, a part of a concert-room, theatre, &c., appropriated to performers: also the body of the

Ottava Alta, (abbreviated 8va.), to be played an octave above, until contradicted by the word loco; (which see.)

Overture, an introductory symphony to an oratorio, opera, &c.

Pastorale, an elegant movement written in 6-8, or 12-8 time.

Pietoso, in a religious style.

Portamento, the manner of sustaining and conducting the voice from one sound to another.

Presto, quick.

Prestissimo, very quick.

Primo, the first or leading part.

Quartette, a piece of four parts, for a single voice, or instrument to each part.

Quintette, a piece of five obligato parts, each performed by a single voice or instrument.

Rallentando, softer and slower by degrees; abating, or retarding.

Recitative, a species of music between singing and speaking, or musical declamation in which the singer uses the inflections and tones of the speaking voice; in which, also, he is not restricted in sound or time, so long as he keeps to the harmony of the measure.

Rehearsal, a private execution of music before performed in public.

Rinforzando, Rinf., increasing suddenly in power <

Risoluto, resolute, bold.

Sentimento, with feeling, tenderly.

Sforzando, suddenly diminishing a sound >

Solfeggio, a vocal exercise sung with the syllables Do, Re, &c., or to a single word, as Amen.

Soli, the plural of Solo, one voice or instrument to a part.

Solo, a piece or passage for a single voice or instrument.

Sostenuto, in a sustained manner.

Spiritoso, with spirit.

Staccato, notes struck in a quick, short, and detached manner.

Subject, the leading idea, or text, in a piece of music.

Symphony, an elaborate composition for instruments.

Tempo, time.

Tempo Primo, the original time.

Trio, a composition for three voices or instruments.

Vigorous, vigorous, bold.

BLEST HOUR. L. M.

V. C. T.

Rather Slow. With Feeling, and devoid of Show.

The musical score is written on five staves. The first two staves are for the vocal melody, and the last three are for the piano accompaniment. The key signature is one flat (B-flat), and the time signature is common time (C). The lyrics are printed below the vocal staves.

1. Blest hour, when mortal man re-tires To hold com-munion with his God, To send to heaven his warm desires, And listen to the sa-cred word.
2. Blest hour, when earthly cares re-sign Their em-pire o'er his anxious breast, While, all a-round, the calm divine Proclaims the bo-ly day of rest.
3. Blest hour, when God himself draws nigh, Well pleased his people's voice to hear, To hush the pen-i-ten-tial sigh, And wipe a-way the mourner's tear.

* This tune and Exhortation are among the gems of the old Continental "School." They are inserted here without change of words, "alteration or emendation;" because, to modernize them in the slightest degree would divest them of their antique and distinctive character. To give them their pristine appearance, there should be a scrupulous eschewal, in the performance, of any species of instrumentation, and the pitch should be taken from a pitch-pipe.

Be careful, in pronouncing here, to avoid giving the "ty" the sound of "tee."

you shall say, "my joys are gone," When you shall say, "my joys are gone," When you shall say, "my joys are gone."

This tune, like the one opposite, is given here as a faithful transcript from Smith and Little's Collection, published in the last century; and, as a composition of its time, is by no means of an inferior quality. In respects sharp sevenths, here we introduce them occasionally where it seems not absolutely inadmissible so to do. It is, however, with great diffidence that we do so. We think the safer way is to leave the taste and discrimination of the singer decide the matter, and make them sharp or natural, "ad libitum;" as either way will doubtless be equally effective.

WINDHAM. L. M.

REED.

1. Broad is the road that leads to death, And thou - sands walk to - geth - er there: But wis - dom shows a nar - row path, With here and there a tra - vel - er.

* The cadence here used, as well as the general arrangement of the time, brings it nearer the original form, we believe, than is found in any other modern publication.

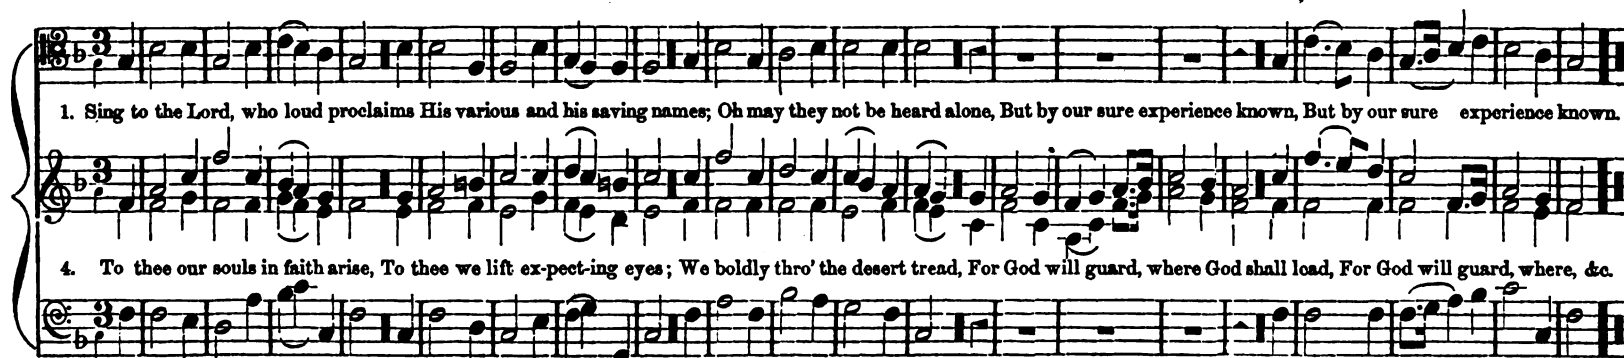

DUKE STREET. L. M.

J. HATTON.

Lord, when thou didst ascend on high, Ten thousands angels filled the sky; Those heavenly guards around thee wait, Like chariots, that attend thy state.

ROTHWELL. L. M.

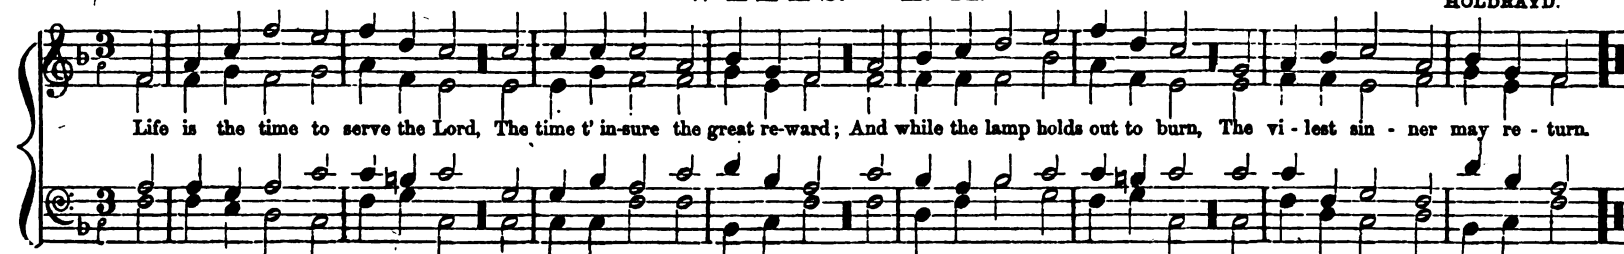

1. Sing to the Lord, who loud proclaims His various and his saving names; Oh may they not be heard alone, But by our sure experience known, But by our sure experience known.

4. To thee our souls in faith arise, To thee we lift expecting eyes; We boldly thro' the desert tread, For God will guard, where God shall lead, For God will guard, where, &c.

WELLS. L. M.

HOLDRAID.

Life is the time to serve the Lord, The time t'insure the great reward; And while the lamp holds out to burn, The vilest sinner may return.

1. No more, my God— I boast no more Of all the du - ties I have done; I quit the hopes I held be - fore, To trust the me-rits of thy Son.
 4. The best o - be - dience of my hands Dares not ap - pear be-fore thy throne; But faith can an - swer thy de-mands, By pleading what my Lord has done.

* The universal use made of these four tunes, wherever the author's works have been introduced, together with repeated requests from teachers and leaders, induce their republication in this collection. The simplicity of their character renders them practically available.

NORTHFIELD. L. M.

V. C. T. 41

Quite Fast & Staccato.

1. Je - sus! and shall it ev - er be— A mor-tal man a-shamed of thee! A-shamed of thee—whom an-gels praise! Whose glories shine thro' end-less days.
 2. A-shamed of Je-sus!—that dear friend On whom my hopes of heav'n de - pend! No!—when I blush, be this my shame—That I no more re - vere his name.

* Classical authorities are not settled as to whom the authorship of this celebrated old piece is attributable. Smith and Little ascribe it to Morgan, and other antiquated collections to Moore. Amid such contrariety we credit it to both, presuming that between the two, justice will fall where it belongs. Owing to a certain freedom or waywardness in the progression of the several parts of these old tunes, we omit arranging them for the organ, for it seems to be their preference to be "executed" without any such instrumental assistance.

Medium.

1. Your harps, ye trembling saints, Down from the wil-lows take: Loud to the praise of love di-vine, Bid ev-ery string a-wake.
 6. Blest is the man, O God, That stays him-self on thee!—Who waits for thy sal-va-tion, Lord, Shall thy sal-va-tion see.

* Treble, be careful to sing the last note of the third strain on D, instead of B \flat , as is generally written.

ESSEX. S. M.

v. c. t. 181

Medium.

4. My gracious God, how plain Are thy di - rec-tions given! Oh! may I nev-er read in vain, But find the path to heaven!
 3. How per-fect is thy word! And all thy judgments just! For-ev-er sure thy prom-ise, Lord, And we se-cure-ly trust.

CULVER. S. M. *

German Theme.

Medium, but with Animation.

1. Grace 'tis a charming sound, Har-mo-nious to the ear! Heaven with the ech-o shall re-sound, And all the earth shall hear.
 2. Grace first contrived a way To save re-bel-lious man; And all its steps that grace dis-play Which drew the won-drous plan.

GONZALES. S. M.

V. C. T.

Lively. In Exact Time.

1. "The Lord is risen in-deed!"—Then jus-tice asks no more; Mer-cy and truth are now agreed, Who stood opposed before, Who stood opposed before.
 2. "The Lord is risen in-deed!"—Then is his work performed; The mighty captive now is freed, And death, our foe, disarmed, And death, our foe, disarmed.

DAWN. S. M.

And bids the clouds, in air upborne,
Their genial drops distil:
In every vernal beam it glows,
And breathes in every gale that blows,
And glides in every rill.
3. But in the gospel it appears,
In sweeter, fairer characters,
And charms the ravished breast;
There, love immortal leaves the sky,
To wipe the drooping mourner's eye,
And give the weary rest.
4. Then let the love that makes me blest,
With cheerful praise inspire my breast,
And ardent gratitude;
And all my thoughts and passions tend
To thee, my Father and my Friend,
My soul's eternal good.

1. How pleased and blest was I To hear the people cry, "Come, let us seek our God to-day!" Yes, with a cheerful zeal, We haste to Zi-on's hill,

The first system of the musical score is written for three parts: Soli, Trebles, and Coro. It begins with a key signature of one flat (B-flat) and a time signature of 3/4. The Soli part is a single melodic line. The Trebles part is a single melodic line. The Coro part is a single melodic line. The lyrics are: "1. How pleased and blest was I To hear the people cry, 'Come, let us seek our God to-day!' Yes, with a cheerful zeal, We haste to Zi-on's hill,"

And there our vows . . . and ho-nors pay.

And there our vows and ho-nors pay, And there our vows and ho-nors pay.

The second system of the musical score continues the melody for the three parts. It includes dynamic markings: mp (mezzo-piano), mf (mezzo-forte), and Ritard. (ritardando). The lyrics are: "And there our vows and honors pay, And there our vows and honors pay, And there our vows and ho-nors pay, And there our vows and ho-nors pay." The system ends with a double bar line.

BETHEL. S. P. M.

Modium.

The first system of the musical score consists of four staves. The top two staves are for vocal parts, with a treble clef and a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat). The bottom two staves are for piano accompaniment, with a grand staff (treble and bass clefs) and the same key signature. The tempo is marked 'Modium.' and the dynamics are marked 'm' (mezzo), 'f' (forte), and 'ff' (fortissimo). The lyrics are written below the vocal staves.

1. How pleased and blest was I To hear the peo-ple cry, "Come, let us seek our God to-day!" Yes, with a cheer-ful zeal,
 4. May peace at-tend thy gate, And joy with-in thee wait To bless the soul of ev-ery guest; The man who seeks thy peace,

UNISONS.

The second system of the musical score continues the composition. It features the same four-staff layout as the first system. The tempo remains 'Modium.' and the dynamics are marked 'Soli.' and 'Coro ff' (Coro fortissimo). The lyrics are written below the vocal staves.

We haste to Zi-on's hill, And there our vows and ho-nors pay, And there our vows and ho-nors pay.
 And wish-es thine in-crease, A thou-sand bless-ings on him rest, A thou-sand bless-ings on him rest.

INSTRUMENTAL.

* Some of our Choirs, especially such as are destitute of efficient instrumental aid, may look upon tunes like "Crete," and wonder why we give them a place in our work; as they require an ability on the part of the singer, not every where (for want of sufficient practice and culture) to be found. To such inquiries we briefly reply:—First, if choirs can not sing them, there are tunes enough, which are simple, which can be used in their stead; second, the practice of such music, is, in the highest sense, beneficial to any singer wishing to advance beyond the precincts of mere ordinary plain Psalmody; third, in nearly all Congregations, since we have had of late so much fine Concert singing, there are persons whose tastes frequently crave something a little above the common style of four-part singing.

Arranged from the Spanish.

Rather Slowly.

1. Sa-viour, source of ev-ery blessing, Tune my heart to grateful lays; Streams of mer-cy, nev-er ceas-ing, Call for ceaseless songs of praise.
2. Thou didst seek me when a stran-ger, Wandering from the fold of God; Thou, to save my soul from dan-ger, Didst re-deem me with thy blood.

3. Teach me some me-lo-dious mea-sure, Sung by rap-tured saints a-bove; Fill my soul with sa-cred plea-sure, While I sing re-deem-ing love.
4. By thy hand re-stored, de-fend-ed, Safe thro' life, thus far, I'm come; Safe, O Lord, when life is end-ed, Bring me to my heavenly home.

* In the "Golden Lyre" we attempted to bring this tune more within the range of ordinary Treble voices by transposing it to A flat, and by giving portions of the Melody to the lower part.
It loses so much of its characteristic life and buoyancy, that we again restore it to its former key, as found in the "Sacred Minstrel."

The piano accompaniment is on the bottom three staves, with a grand staff (treble and bass clefs) and a key signature of two flats. The lyrics are written below the vocal staff.

1. Rise, Sun of glo - ry, rise, And chase the shades of night, Which now ob - scure the skies, And hide thy sa - cred light:
 2. Now send thy spi - rit down On all the na - tions, Lord, With great suc - cess to crown The preach - ing of thy word.
 3. Then shall thy king - dom come A - mong our fall - en race, And all the earth be - come The tem - ple of thy grace.

The second system of the musical score continues the composition with four staves. It maintains the same key signature and tempo. The lyrics continue below the vocal staff.

O chase these dis - mal shades a - way, And bring the bright, mil - len - nial day, And bring the bright, mil - len - nial day!
 That hea - then lands may own thy way, And cast their i - dol gods a - way, And cast their i - dol gods a - way.
 Whence pure de - vo - tion shall as - cend, And songs of praise, till time shall end, And songs of praise till time shall end.

"Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God! Beloved, now are we the sons of God"—1 John, iii. 1, 2.

Medium.

The musical score is written for a voice and piano. The voice part is in the upper staff, and the piano accompaniment is in the lower staff. The key signature is one flat (B-flat), and the time signature is 3/4. The music is in a medium tempo. The lyrics are written below the voice staff.

1. The wanderer no more will roam, The lost one to the fold hath come, The prodigal is welcom'd home, O Lamb of God, in thee, The prodigal is welcom'd home, O Lamb of God, in thee.
 2. Tho' elad in rags, by sin defiled, The Father hath embraced his child, And I am pardoned, reconcil'd, O Lamb of God, in thee, And I am pardoned, reconcil'd, O Lamb of God, in thee.

It is the Father's joy to bless,
 His love provides for me a dress,
 [A robe of spotless righteousness,
 O Lamb of God, in thee:]

Now shall my famished soul be fed,
 A feast of love for me is spread,
 [I feed upon the children's bread,
 O Lamb of God, in thee:]

Yea, in the fulness of his grace,
 He puts me in the children's place,
 [Where I may gaze upon his face,
 O Lamb of God, in thee:]

I cannot half his love express,
 Yet, Lord, with joy my lips confess
 [This blessed portion I possess,
 O Lamb of God, in thee:]

It is thy precious name I bear,
 It is thy spotless robe I wear,
 [Therefore the Father's love I share,
 O Lamb of God, in thee:]

And when I in thy likeness shine,
 The glory and the praise be thine
 [That everlasting joy is mine,
 O Lamb of God, in thee:]

The musical score is written for a four-part setting (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and piano accompaniment. The key signature is B-flat major (two flats) and the time signature is 3/4. The tempo and dynamics are marked 'Allegretto f' and 'm' (moderato). The lyrics are printed below the vocal staves. The piano part features a steady accompaniment with triplets in the right hand and chords in the left hand. The vocal parts enter in sequence, with the Soprano part starting on a high note and the Bass part on a low note. The piece concludes with a final chord in the piano and a sustained note in the Soprano part.

Slightly Faster than Medium.

The musical score is written for a four-part vocal choir (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and piano accompaniment. The key signature has two flats (B-flat and E-flat), and the time signature is 2/4. The tempo is marked 'Slightly Faster than Medium.' The score is divided into two systems. The first system includes the lyrics: 'Lord, dis-miss us with thy bless-ing, Bid us all de-part in peace; Still on gos-pel-man-na feed-ing, Pure se-raph-ic love in-crease.' The second system includes the lyrics: 'Fill each breast with con-so-lation, Up to thee our voices raise; When we reach that blissful station, Then we'll give thee nobler praise, Then we'll give thee nobler praise.' The piano part features a steady accompaniment with some melodic lines. Dynamics include 'Cres.' (Crescendo) and '> f' (Forte). The score ends with a double bar line.

CHORISTER'S INDEX TO WORDS, OF ALL METRES CONTAINED IN THE BOOK.

Notes.—In addition to our remarks in the preface, on the subject of odd metres, we would further observe; that as our sole aim has been to produce a work of the most practical value, we have, throughout the various metres a supply of appropriate tunes, according to their pro rata importance in the scale of use. Seven-eighths of the Hymns used in public worship, are of the Long, Common, Short, Long, Common, Common Particular, Short Particular, Sevens, Eights and Sevens, Eights, Sevens and Fours, and Hallelujah measure; the provision, therefore, for these metres, in comparison to the various other odd metres, should be, as seven to one. Yet, except such Hymns as show a discrepancy of measure between their several stanzas, we believe that desirable tunes will be found in these pages for all the odd metres. The difference, therefore, between a Chorister's Index of exclusively odd metres—many of which, the tunes assigned for their performance to, he is directed to observe sundry "slurs," "repeats," and "omissions"—is, the following arrangement not only meets the occasional wants of all odd metres of regular measure, but proves a guide in the adaptation of that portion of Psalmody, where the Leader's labors are most generally confined.
